
Conclusion

The conclusion is where you summarise the study, discuss its implications and limitations, and pose questions for further research. It is the last thing your examiner reads, so make a good last impression. Answer the following questions to create a chapter synopsis.

What are your answers to the research questions?

How have you addressed your aims and objectives?

What is the significance and implications of your findings?

What contribution has the study made?

What are the limitations of the study and questions for further research?
